CUR UNEMPLOYED MECHANICS.—It is not at all necessary for us to state that we most heartily sympathise with the unfortunate mechanics of our city who have been thrown out of employment by the recent financial disasters, and that in all the efforts to ameliorate their condition we feel a lively intetest. To succor them in this their utmost hour of need is, we conceive, the duty of every good citizen, and the question how assistance may be most justly and delicately rendered is the only one that perplexes us. We must first understand the character of those persons who need assistance. This is no ordinary crisis, and the demands, not upon our charity but upon our brotherly sympathies, are addressed to us from a wbol.y., different class of individuals from that which usually appeals to us in this inclement season. We must therefore classify the needy according to their characters. Those drunken and worthless characters who make subjects for our police reports are not to be treated as objects of charity, but as vagrants. For them we have no time to spend in words of entreaty and reproof. They should not be suffered to eat the bread of the worthy; they must not be confounded with the respectable poor. Everybody should be fed, if possible, but it is a cruelty and an insult to confound the worthy and honest indigent with the dissolute and degraded. Such persons, as a matter of course, should be relieved, but the condition of their relief should be a discription of punish ment.

Onr unemployed mechanics are taking active steps to relieve themselves from the distresses that threaten them. They can, however, accomplish nothing whatever without the hearty assistance and co-operation of our business men and capitalists. deserve aid, who can or dare g His heart must be of iron and the fountain of his sympathies frozen who at this inauspicious moment could for an instant even reflect upon what is the paramount duty of every man in the premises.

We conceive that it would be best to organise in every ward a committee of relief-that the personal attention of the members of the committee should be given to every individual case of destitution. Every good citizen should regard himself as having a personal duty and interest in the subject. No man should content himself with having subscribed or donated so much. Every householder should find some regular place for the free disposal of the surplus of his kitchen and his wardrobe. There should be among the females of each household some watchful Dorcas ready to render assistance or give employment wherever needed. The giving of alms is but a part of our duty in relieving the poor. A dollar may go a great ways, but the smile of encouragement, the hearty shake of the hand in sympathy goes much farther.

As we have already stated, this is a delicate ques tion and requires the most judicious handling. We hope that the committee appointed by the chairman of the meeting held at Masonic Hall on Saturday evening will organise some definite plan of action. In the meanwhile, it would not be improper for our cltizens to perfect such an organization as will seonre a fund in each ward, so held in trust that only the worthy may avail themselves of it, even under the character of loans, to enable them to pass through the winter.

Onr citizens, we feel assured; are not acquainted with the acual amount of ansfering in our midst It is already startling, and God only knows how high the waves of misery may heave about and above an employed population before the piercing winds of December shall give place to the soft sweet, bland zephyrs of spring. Now, however, is the opportune time for the adoption of measures of relief, and not a moment should be lost.

FOUND GUILTY .- Wm. Morgan alias Jones who trial took place last week at Columbus, Ohio, on the charge of murdering Cyrus Beebe, was found guilty of murder in the second degree. The punish for the offence is imprisonment for life.

Parker White and Patrick Kelly, who shot one another in an affray in the Seventeenth Ward, Baltimore, have both died of their wounds.

A QUESTION FOR To-DAY .- The meeting of mechanics at the Masonic Hall, on Saturday night, develops the startling fact that 3,000 industrious people, working people, male and female people, of the city of Louisville, are out of employment by the money pressure. There is a long dreary winter be fore them with the wants of family around them. They want work to do. They don't want charity. That, if not too cold a word, is a word too insufficient for a supply. It is a moment's relief and unsatisfactory at best. The mass of the high-minded industrious people thus suddenly thrown out of work would scorn mere charity. They don't want something for nothing. They want to labor. They want to give labor as an equivolent for food, clothing, and shelter for themselves and families. They don't expect, in the present crisis, to draw full wages as when their labor was in demand and capital competed for it. They are and will be content with the necessaries of life for its price now. The question is: how and by whom will that labor be furnished and that price be pald to them for doing it?

This is the question. The men of capital, the benks, and business mea must put their minds to the consideration of it in time. The city authorities must do some thinking about it also. It is a serious question and as urgent as it is serious. Hunger noust be appeased. Can the employers of the city do business and furnish labor for these hands and pay them for it until spring? Some say they can on their own means; others say they can on small ac-commodations from the banks. Will the banks give They will. Yet the employers say confidence -currency is depreciating-we are afraid to make sales-we don't kuow who will pay us-let us accumulate a large stock of winter's work, and what will, what can we do with it in the springwhere shall we find a safe market for it, safe persons to buy it from us or to sell it for us? . These are the perplexing unsettled questions to be answered before work can be given to the idle and money paid for it, even to keep the unemployed people alive till spring.

The meeting of Saturday night appointed an in telligent coinmittee on the supply of labor and put them under instructions to confer with the employ ers, the banks, and the merchants as to the best method to obtain it, and when ready to report to call a meeting-an earnest, peaceful meeting of all the business classes and of all branches of industry in the city to hear it and to deliberate upon it. If that committee find that the present employers can't carry on work and furnish the needed employment then the moneyed men will consider how and on what terms and by what system of agency the necessaries of life can and will be furnished to the un employed and the needy. We will say more in our next issue on this subject. Meantime, we say think! think!! think of the present necessity and of wise and prudent means for its relief!!!

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 20, 1857.

THE HOG MARKET .- Our Weekly is published to-day, and the farmers in the country doubtless feel anxious to know something about the price of hogs. There is nothing doing in them, though the season has arrived for killing. Yesterday the weather was very favorable for it. No hogs have yet come in Packers cannot get any accommodations at the banks, and are willing to buy only on time. The price offered is $5, net, and drovers are asking £5 50.

B. B.

It was reported yesterday, though we cannot vouch for its correctness, that contracts had been made in Bourbon county at $3 50 and in Anderson at $3, gross, both on time.

If the droyers are dissatisfied with these prices and wish to pack on their own account, they can find no point that gives greater advantages to then than this city.

At New York last week sales of 1,000 dresses hogs were made for November delivery at 7 cents and 2,000 for December at 61/4 cents.

PROPHECY AFTER THE FACT .- Under the head of "Poetic Prophecy," the Cincinnati Gazette quote: the following passage from Byron's "Curse of Minerva," as foreshadowing the present British ca lamities in India:

"Look to the East, where Ganges's swarthy race Shall shake your tyrant empire to its base; Lo there rebellion rears i er ghastly head, And glares the Nemesis of native dead; Till Judus roils a deep purpureal flood, And claims his iong arrear of Northern blood."

In order to understand the amount of prophecy is these lines one has simply to remember that they were published in 1811, and that only a few years before "rebellion" had actually reared "her ghastly head" in India, and done everything that the lines portray. The passage, instead of being "poetic prophecy," is, in fact, poetic history.

THE TROUBLE IN NEW YORK .- The telegraph brings us intelligence of more serious difficulty at the commercial emporium. Mayor Wood is de nounced a humbug. The services of the U.S. troops are called in. These are but small matters. By to-morrow the trouble will blow over.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS,

The river was rising very fast yesterday morning, but in the evening the rise was not so rapid. There were then 8 feet water in the canal and 51/4 feet on the falls. At Pittsburg, last evening, there were 111/2 feet and rising. The weather yesterday was

The Telegraph No. 3, Capt. Hildreth, is the mailboat for Cincinnati to-day. We understand that the mailboat company has reduced the wages of deckhands and firemen from $30 to $20 per month.

The Emnia Dean is the packet for Carrollton today. We are indebted to Mr. Snyder for a copy of her manifest.

The fine steamer Diamond, Capt. Holcroft, is the acket for Evansville to-day.

The good steamer Tempest, Capt. Tarr, Mr. Johnon, clerk, will leave for Nashville to-day.

The underwriters at Pittsburg have announced that policies of insurance are vitiated by the failure of the master of the boat to have at all times a watchman on duty, as well in port as underweigh, by night as well as day.

The Cincinnati Commercial of yesterday says: Licking river poured out in torrents on Saturday, sweeping off considerable property. We do not re-member having seen it so turbulent during the past ten years, except on the occasion of the breaking up of the ice last winter and the year previous. At Falmount the railroad bridge was so badly damaged as to stop the passage of the trains over it. Six or as to stop the passage of the trains over it. Six or seven coal barges and one or two empty flats, with an immense amount of drift, were swept out of this stream during the day, keeping the towboat Champion busy overhauling and landing the boats. Two or three of the coalboats were loaded and careened and sunk in front of the city.

When the American Express messenger left Columbus vesterday at 2 A. M., the Scioto river was bank full, and it was feared the grain warehouses in the bottom would be inundated. Both Miamis are also at flood height.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

In the Journal of Friday last, you speak of a Mr. Perry McD. Collins, whose official residence is upon the Armour river in Tartary, and add, "Mr. Collins, who is a Californian, has recently traversed Asia, and, indeed, the whole breadth of the Russian Empire, from west to east, and he is the first American, it is said, who has done it.

it is said, who has done it."

This is a mistake. Mr. John De Wolf returned to Bristol, R. I., the place of his residence, from such a journey in 1807 or 1808. He, in company with a Russian Count by the name of Langsdorff, left St. Petersburg and traversed the whole breadth of the Russian Empire, from yest to east, in aledges drawn by dogs. When they reached the eastern coast of Kamschatka, they paised over to the Aleutian Islauds, and from thence to the northwest coast coast of Namschatka, they pussed over to the Aleutian Islauda, and from thence to the northwest coast of North America, where they wintered. I was a little girl at the time of his return, living with my brother-in-law, John De Wolf, own cousin to the first mentioued, and recollect steing him, and hearing much of his adventures. During the summer of 1818, I spent two months with his wife in Boston, whither he had removed, and while there read a book published either by Count Langsdorff or Mr. De Wolf (I forget which), giving an account of their travels. I recollect that it stated they found the climate in the high northern lattude in which they wintered considerably warmer than that of Boston. I saw, while in his house, spedmens of the work of the natives, which Mr. De W brought home with him. These, I think, were from the Aleutian Islands. This is the same Mr. De Wolf whom Dr. Stone, in his life of Bishop Griawold, mentions under the cognomen of Nor'west John.

sequences to the female members of Powell's family have been the result of his conviction, and it was supposed that his pardon, besides being an act due to him and to mercey and justice, would mitigate the poignancy of their sufferings. From a personal examination of all the facts laid before the Governor by the legal authorities of lovierille and provinces. by the legal authorities of Louisville and men whose official connection with the case would necessarily cause them to speak the strictest truth, we are concause them to speak the strictest truth, we are convinced that Gov. Morehead was not only right in pardoning Powell, but that he would have laid himself liable to just censure had he not acted precisely as he did. How is the Governor to decide upon such a matter if not from the testimony of the judge, prosecuting attorneys, and the jury, all of whom in this case represented it as the Governor's duty to act as he did? It is evident that he must rely upon their representations. We may as well remark that Gov. Morehead has granted fewer pardons and remissions than any of his predecessors, and invariamissions than any of his predecessors, and invaria-bly demands the most incontestible evidence that he is right before he exercises his clemency.

you, among certain persons now assembled at Lecompton, and that they are threatening violence, desirous of preserving the peace of the Territory,
we respectfully invite you to remove to this locality,

GENTLEMEN: We have received your communica-GENTLEMEN: We have received your communica-tion of this date, inviting us to remove to the city of Lawrence, and offering your protection against personal violence, which you suppose has been threat-ened by certain persons in Lecompton. It is quite true, gentlemen, that the evening succeeding our re-ception of the Oxford returns a small meeting here of fifteen or twenty persons, depouted even over of fifteen or twenty persons denounced our course, in connection with the administration of the affairs of Kansas; but no threats of personal violence were made, as far as we have learned; and we entertain no apprehensions of that nature. Even if such menaces had been made, our official duty requires our presence now at Lecompton, and no hazard of personal consequences would deter us from remaining here. Whilst, therefore, we must decline your invitation to remove to Lawrence, we tender you our invitation to remove to Lawrence, we tender you our sincere thanks for your hospitalities so kindly proffered. We thank, you, also, gentlemen, for the approbation you have been pleased to express, of our conrse in regard to the extraordinary returns (us they are called) from Oxford. From our first inspection of that document, we never doubted or hesitated as to its rejection. But besides the intrinsic evidence on the face of the paper itself, we deemed it our duty, by a visit to that precinct, to ascertain the facts which are set forth in our proclamation of the 10th inst. From the period of our entrance into this Territory, it has been our determination, so far as within our power, to enable the people of Kansas, in the true meaning of the organic law, to control their own Government; and to this policy we shall continue steadfastly to adhere. Influenced by these considerations, we have rejected the spurious and illegal returns from McGee county, as well as from Oxford. Accept, gentlemen, most sincere assurance of the respectful consideration of your fellowof Kansas; but no threats of personal violence were made, as far as we have learned; and we entertain Oxford. Accept, gentlemen, most sincere assur-nce of the respectful consideration of your fellow-itizens, R. J. WALKER, FRED. P. STANTON.

The Parnon or Powell.—The exercise of Gov. Morehead's executive clemency in the pardon of Ben. Powell, ir., has been made the subject of characteristic comment in the editorial columns of on oct the city papers. As the best response to the queralous complaints of that sheet we publish the following from the Frankfort Commonwealth. It explains the whole matter. We may as well say in this connection that the leading Democratic organ of the city papers. As the Democratic organ of the city papers. As the Democratic organ of the city and State has published the facts of the pardon and justified Gov. Morehead in his conducts:

We regret to see that a Democratic organ of the city and State has published the facts of the productive of the State. We will away fault with the Governor if he were a member of the same political party as its editor, few will believe. The Color of Bulkings.—In arranging the tints for the exterior of a country house, it is better to make them a little warmer than will be entirely satisfactory, at first, because the pigments must certainly fade more or less in a few months, and the permanent effect is what should most be thought of at nent effect is what should most be thought of at starting. In painting a country house, the aim should be to give it a cool effect in summer, and a warm effect in winter; and this is not so difficult as might at first be supposed, because all combinations of color are mutually dependant on each other; and the marked contrast in the appearance of the surface of the soil gives an opportunity, when choosing the tints for a house, to select a happy medium that shall be snited to more tints than one.

CULTIVATION OF PEAR ORCHARDS .- Elliot, in his American Fruit Growers' Guide, thus writes of soils and manures for the pear tree:

The pear roots thrive best in a soil where the subsoil is at once dry and moist; that is, where it is open and porous sufficient to admit of free drainage, and yet where the roots extending deeply and freely in it, reach moisture in seasons of extreme drought. Cold clay is a bad subsoil, and when it exists in the ground of a prospective orchard it should be deeply and thoroughly subsoiled, and well drained. The pear on quince roots succeeds best in rich, deep, moist, loamy ground, even enduring considerable water better than dry sand.

The following is the analysis of the ash of the pear, as made by Dr. Emmons:

from the manage of Dr. Dimitions.
Potash Sap	Wood. 22.25	Bark. 6.20

He goes on to say:

He goes on to say:

From this it will be seen what is most wanted in the soil to produce healthy foliage and wood in the pear. As a general thing, soils usually are or become deficient in lime and the phosphates, and the cheapest remedy is liberal dressing of wood ashes and bone dust; or in sections where bone dust is not easily attainable, dig in around the tree whole bones from the daily use of a family, or procured from a slaughter-house. Potash dissolved in water and applied to vegetable mould from the woods, and this dug in around the tree, is also a cheap and ready way of supplying food requisites. Iron filings, etc., from smith's shops are also good, and hence the impression of some that through it the blight was cured or prevented, the fact being only that a certain element requisite to health was exhausted in the soil. Oyster shell lime is also an excellent manure. In England all the wood ashes are saved by families, and purchased by farmers at a high price, and have a fixed market value as much as any other market production. Some of the rich farmers give peat to the poorer classes to burn on condition to save the ashes for them, which would be an excellent idea in this country to adopt, particularly in New Jersey, where it can be found in plenty.

During the panic which so seriously disturbed the exchanges, several dry goods and other house in New York, rather than submit to the enormous preminms demanded at the West' for gold and for drafts on New York, ordered remittances to be made in wheat and other produce, much of which has recently arrived and turned out well. A shipment of spring wheat, bought in Chicago and forwarded to a dry goods house in New York as a remittante, was sold at $1 per bushel. It was shipped at Chicago, on the 14th of October, the day on which the New York banks suspended, when gold in Chicago was at a premium of 12 per cent, and sight bills on New York could not be had at any price. The sale yielded a snm which fully paid the difference of exchange, or proved equal to a sight draft Izard, of Nebraska, has forwarded to Washington his resignation of the Governorship, assigning as the main reason for the step, that the climate of Nebraska is so severe, as to be unsuited to his constitution. His residence there last winter he characterizes as the most disagreeable part of his life.

There are indications, says the New York Times, that the news of our hard times received on the other side will materially check emigration; the ship Baltic, one of the most popular of Zerega's Liverpool line, arrived here vesterday with only 29 passengers, all told. She sailed Oct. 6, after the intelligence of the revulsion had reached England.

The Navy Department has received dispatches from Commander Hoff, stationed at Panama. Speaking of Panama affairs, he says:

Everything on the Isthmus at present remains quiet. A few days since, however, considerable excitement existed, but entirely of a local as well as of an amusing character, arising from a bill of divorcement having been introduced into the Legislature while in session here. Its features were of an abominable character, destroying the marriage tie at the mere instance of one or the other individual going before a magistrate. It passed into a law, and they then adjourned sine die. The Governor, however, had the good sense to recouvene the Legislaever, had the good sense to recouvene the Legisla-ture, directing a reconsideration and bringing before them his veto.

This veto was accompanied by an armed body of young men, who, when the Legislature tried to enforce it a second time, began with loud shouts and ultimately, by threatening one or two of the parties, succeeded in having the motion lost. The members of this grave assemblage then dispersed to their homes. The object seemed to be perfectly understood. Some six members had influence sufficient to carry this obnoxious affair, from the well-known derire to separate themselves from their wives, and hence the intrusion of the young men, and my presenting to you the state of morals on the Isthmus and district of Panama,

The Legislature also passed a law instituting some forty per cent, instead of eight as heretofore, on the business profits of all houses of trade over $300. The merchants here, who are principally foreigners, are about complaining nuder protest to the Governor, and I have no doubt it will on the next session be repealed, or brought down to a more satisfactory ar-

JUDGE GOULD ON NATURALIZATION—The Hon. Geo. Gould, of Troy, while holding a circuit of the Supreme Court in the Third district, was applied to by a stont Hibernian for "his papers," in the manner following, to-wit:

The clerk informed the Judge that the man wished to be naturalized, and he (the clerk) proposed to conduct the matter, as usual, at his own desk, without interrupting the business of the cont. The Judge replied that he knew no business more important than giving a man the full rights of an American citizen, and that he would himself conduct the proceedings in open court.

The applicant thereupon produced his certificate of intention and his witnesses as to residence, good character, &c. After which the following collequy Pat—Oh, yes, yer Honor! I'm ready to swear to that.

Judge—Did yon ever read that Constitution?
Pat—No, yer Honor.
Judge—Ora word of it?
Pat—No, yer Houor.
Judge—Did you ever hear a word of it read?
Pat—No, yer Honor.

Judge—Can you read and write?
Pat—Yes, sir.
Judge—Do yon know one word that is in the Constitution of the United States?
Pat—Indeed and I do not, yer Honor.
Judge—You have lived in this country nearly six years; you can read and write, and you have been all this time intending to become a citizen here, yet you have never taken the trouble to learn or know one word of the instrument you are now ready to take a solemn oath to support. An American born here, and living here until he is twenty-one years of age, learns more or less of the Constitution under which he lives, as well as of the rights and duties of citizenship. At any rate, whether he does this or not, he is presumed to have done it, and therefore the laws of the land give him the right to vote without the formality of an oath; it is his birth-right. To those not born on the soil, the law applies a different when the oath now without the formality of an oath; it is his birth-right. To those not born on the soil, the law applies a different rule, and requires from them the oath now under consideration in your case. I hold that the due, even the decent, administration of that oath depends in part on the condition that the applicant should at least understand it; and I will never al-low such an abuse of the law as would be committed by your taking that oath in your present circumstances. You cannot be naturalized by this court.

The above, which is an exact relation of an actual occurrence, touches the very root of this matter of naturalization, and of course applies to all nationalities as well as that of the subject of the story. The evils of which the American party professes to seek the cure are the consequences of the abuse of the naturalization laws, not their proper administration. Had those laws been always, and were they now, administered with the integrity of purpose and common sense view of their requirements, exhibited by Judge Gould, there would be little ground of objection, if any, to the effect of their operations. The scattered remnants of the Know Nothing party may make themselves consistently useful in their day and generation, by endeavoring to secure the universal application of the sound and simple principles of which this case is an exponent.

death of Pryor, an animal that came to England with a high reputation.

At Tattersall's yesterday, the inclement weather prevented subscribers from mustering in large numbers at the corner. There was a marked absence of backers of horses, and the little business transacted on the Cambridgeshire cannot be regarded as indicative of the true tone of the market. The only animal that appeared to be really in demand was the American mare Prioress, about which 100 to 8 was taken. The following were the only quotations we were enabled to obtain:

But old Lucre declined respectfully.

"I do not see," he said, "what benefit this statue will be to me; and $500 is a great deal of money to pay for the gratification of other people." 'Benefit to you?" replied the Colonel; "why, sir, it will benefit you more than anybody else. The statue can be seen from every window of your honse; it will be an ornament, and add dignity to the whole neighborhood, and it will perpetually remind you of the Father of his Conntry—the immortal Washington!" "Ah! Colonel," answered old Lucre, "I do not require a statue to remind me of him, for I always carry Washington here," and he placed his hand upon his heart. "Then let me tell you," replied Col. Lee, "if that is so, all I have to say is, that you have got Washington in a d—d tight place."

The Stamese Twins.—These wonderful prodigies, says the Wytheyille (Va.) They had six of their children with them. and, upon a gentleman expressing surprise at the number, he was coolly informed that there was a heap more at home, and upon inquiry it was ascertained that they had fourteen in all. They are above 40 years old, and seem to be in the enjoyment of good health.

It is not insulated facts and particular traits that constitute character; it is the general, prevailing, and predominate passion that designates the man, that detaches him from his fellows, and, like his personal features, contradistinguishes him from all approximations of similitude.

GENTLEMEN: In your excellent editorials in this morning's Journal (Nov. 16), on the condition of the unemployed mechanics in our city, you seem to have slightly misunderstood the precise object for which the committee were appointed at the meeting or Saturday avaning last have slightly misunderstood the precise object for which the committee were appointed at the meeting on Saturday evening last.

That committee was appointed not for devising and carrying forward a plan of charitable relief, but to confer with the master mechanics and manufacturers in order to ascertain if there is a probability of any considerable proportion of the present unemployed operatives being furnished with work during the coming winter. Employment is the first object in view, and if this is found to be impossible pecuniary relief must necessarily follow. This employment committee can go forward with their labors, but it is hardly to be expected that any considerable proportion of the unemployed men and women of the city will be able to obtain work during the duff and dreary winter months now before us. In the meantime the small accumulated surplus earnings of our mechanics and working men, especially those having families, are dwindling away, and the ganat visage of want is drawing nearer and nearer. Every day brings to our notice additional cases bordering on actual suffering, and the sooner the public mind is aroused to action on this subject the better it will be for all parties concerned. Your suggestion as to relief committees in each ward is an excellent one, and no time should be lost in organ-the wise counsels and the active services of our best citizens of all classes. No man should feel himself excused from deing all he can to alleviate the suffering and want which now surround us and which threaten to be still more pressing in their demands. For this object, system and plan are needed. Whether this can be best accomplished by a more active re-organization of the old "Relief and Employment Society," or whether the pressing exigencies of the present times demand a different order of procedure is for the public to determine. My suggestion would be for a public meeting of all classes of our citizens to be held as soon as possible, and let some effectual plan of action be then and there agreed upon.

VOLTAIRE'S EPIGRAM ON FREDERICK THE GREAT.

"King, author, philosopher, poet, musician, Free-mason, economist, bard, politician; How had Furope rejoiced if a Christian he'd been! If a man, how would he have enraptured his queen!"

This was handed about Berlin and shown to that great legislator, the Prussian monarch, who deemed it a libel because it was true; and instead of employing a counsel, filing an information, and taking other tedious methods, took a more summary way of punishing the author, who, he knew, must be Voltaire, at that time resident at Berlin. He sent Voltaire, at that time resident at Berlin. He sent his sergeant-at-arms, not with a mace and scrap of parchment, but with such an instrument as the English drummers use for the good of the foot-soldiers who commit any offense against the law military. The Prussian hero went to the house of the poet and told him he came by his Majesty's special command, to reward him for an epigram on his royal master, by administering thirty lashes on his naked back. The poor philosopher knew that remonstrance was vain, and after submitting with the best grace he could, opened the door and made a farewell conge to his nn-welcome visitor, who did not offer to depart, but told him, with the most Germanic gravity, "that the ceremony was not yet concluded, for that the monarch he had the honor of serving must be convinced that his mission was punctually fulfilled, on which account he must have a receipt." This was also submitted to and given in the manner and form following: "Received from the right arm of Conrad Bachoffor, thirty lashes on my naked back, being in Bachoffor, thirty lashes on my naked back, being in full of an epigram on Frederick King of Prussia, by Voltaire. Vice le Roi."—Knickerbocker.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5

The State Department is in receipt of dispatches from Wm. Carey Jones, but nothing of importance relative to Central America. Mr. Jones is perambulating from place to place without accomplishing anything. The administration have despaired of bulating from place to place without accomplishing anything. The administration have despaired of any goed resulting from his mission, and speak of detailing some one to bring him home.

The Navy Department have received dispatches from the Pacific. The frigate Independence arrived at the navy yard, Mare Island, on the 4th ult., in fifty-nine and a half days from Panama. Her officers and crew were well. The John Adams was at Panama on the 17th ult., preparing to return to the United States. Everything on the Isthmus was quiet.

Important dispatches were also received from Washington Territory. J. W. Nesmith, Indian Agent, gives an account of the murder of Col. J. N. Ebay, at his residence on Whidby's Island. The Indians who perpetrated this outrage were from the British possessions to the northward of Puget Sound. They are fierce, warlike, and athletic—superior in the present to the other Judices on the Page. quiet. rior in every respect to the other Indians on the Pacific coast. They have large canoes, some of which will hold one hundred men, and in which they proceed to sea in perfect safety. For several years they have been in the habit of visiting the settle-ments on Puget Sound, sometimes for the purpose of trade, and at other times to commit depredations upon our people. The British traders supply them with arms and amminition. Mr. Nesmith recommends that one or two small armed steamers be placed in his agency and on the coast for the pro-tection of the inhabitants.

IMPORTANT BREACH OF PROMISE CASE_Spiritualism.—The Pen-Yan Democrat says that one of these touching actions, the nature of which is well nnderstood when embraced in this definition, was tried in the Circuit Court in that village last week, Judge Welles presiding. The plaintiff was Miss Elizabeth Baskin, aged thirty-two years, and the defendant, Mr. George L. Jones, aged thirty-one years, both of Milo. That he had courted and won the lady was an undeniable fact, for both having been sworn in the cause, both so testified. The defence set up was, that while in this state of relations toward each other which precedes matrimony, the lady became a convert to spiritualism, and herself an "interpreting medium," and the gentleman not fancying the idea of a crowd of unseen spectators of his marital endearments and domestic felicity, declined to interchange those ratifications, without which no treaty understood when embraced in this definition, was dearments and domestic felicity, declined to inter-change those ratifications, without which no treaty is binding. There was proof on the other hand, that the wooer had introduced his intended first to the "circle," and there, side by side, had courted the presence of the messengers which set tables to moving, and frightened said articles of furniture out of of their wits.

The jury thought that Jones should pay nine hnn-dred dollars for the violation of his plighted faith after so long a coartship.

MISS FLORA McFLIMSEY IN ENGLAND.—In a letter from the daughter of a noble lord in England to ter from the daughter of a noble lord in England to a frieud in this city, she says:

"Is Miss Flora McFlimsey meant to represent a person in the highest class of life? For, you know, in England, the subject of dress is one that is quite ignored in good society. We remark that such a person may dress well, or the contrary, but any lady who talked a great deal, or even showed that she thought a great deal about dress, would be set down as a bore; and, as we express it, would be sent to Coventry.

"We take it for granted that the art of dress comes naturally to a lady-like mind, and requires no thought or effort; consequently any one too smart is generally set down as a person with bad taste and vulgar. That is how we settle things here, and we should not stand Miss Flora for an honr. Onr papers have of late written a great deal against ladies' dress, and very rightly too, for the present fashion is absurd and nunatural."—N. Y. Post.

Cure for Stammering.—At every syllable pronounced, tap at the same time with the tinger. By so doing the most inveterate stammerer will be surprised to find he can prouounce quite fluently, and by long and constant practice he will pronounce perfectly well. This may be explained in two ways, either by a sympathetic consentaneous action of the nerves of voluntary motion in the finger, and in those of the tongue, which is the most probable; or it may be that the movement of the finger distracts the attention of the individual from his speech, and allows a free action of the nerves concerned in articulation.—Scientific American. ticulation .- Scientific American.

DR. A. King, a practitioner of New York for thirty years, and for the last four in this city, has removed his Dispensury to next door to Walker's Exchange. Third street, Louisville, for the treatment of Private Discasses, such as Gonorrhea, Syphilis, and all diseases of the skin and other derangements growing out of neglect or imperfect cure. His long experience and success enable him to act with confidence. All those who may confide their cases to him may rest assured of having the disease effectually cured and every vestige of the difficulties perfectly eradicated from their constitutions.

Synictures of old or recent date effectually cured in a few days by an operation which causes no pain. Where a stricture exists, general derangement of the whole constitution must cusue, a continuance of which will heliar on a train of symptoms to be dreaded, and will undermine the constitution and cause premature old age.

Synianal Weakhyss.—Particular attention will be given to this disease and all the consequences growing out of it, brought on, in many cases, by the destructive habits of inconsiderate youth and excessive indulgence of the passions, which undermine the constitution, reudering the subject unfit for either husines or society, and causing premature old age.

For Persona shroad, by writing and stating their cases, with a fee enclosed (post paid), can have the medicine sent to their address, with necessary directions for using the same.

The strictest secrecy observed in all cases. #11b&jisly

This work has now reached the fourth volume, and is giving great satisfaction among all classes. It will contain the wi dom of Congress for seventy years, and will be an invaluable part of the history of the conntry. It is of national interest, and one of the most valuable compendiums for public and private libraries ever issued. The work realizes a desideratum long felt, and of all others, for the political listory of the Government, most wanted. Its wide range of characters, each one speaking for himself and representing his own party, and its far stretch of time make it of the greatest value to the nation. The indexing is very complete, so that any name or subject desired may be found in either volume at once.

Terms.—The work is publishing exclusively by subscription, and the volumes are issued at intervals of from 2 to 3 months. In cloth bluding at $3; law sheep $3 50; half morocco $4; half caffertra $4 50; each volume parable as delivered.

Novel Steamship—Great Increase of Speed.—
There is now in course of construction, at the Southwark Iron Works, a small steamship, built of iron npon a new principal, which the builders believe will accomplish an average speed of from 25 to 30 miles an hour. The invention, for which a patent has been obtained, is intended to be applied to special transit vessels only, and is not suitable to river steamers, or other vessels intended to be used where the water is shallow or the channels uncertain. Should the expectations of the builders be realized.

the water is shallow or the channels uncertain. Should the expectations of the builders be realized, a vessel built and fitted in the manner proposed can make the voyage from Liverpool to New York in five days, or from Liverpool to Melbourne in 40 days. The novelty of the invention consists for the most part in constructing the vessel so that the centre of gravity is placed below the water line. This is effected by constructing a chamber culled a "well" all along the bottom of the vessel, in which the machinery couls and stores can be deposited. As it is all along the bottom of the vessel, in which the machinery, coals, and stores can be deposited. As it is not proposed that the vessel shall carry cargo, the centre of gravity will thus become a suspended instead of a supported body; and it is believed that this peculiar formation will materially decrease the area of resistance to the water. The sides of the vessel rise perpendicularly from the well; and although the appearance of the vessel at present is anything but graceful, the patentee is of opinion that her form is constructed so as to secure the greatest amount of speed compatible with safety. The improvements proposed to be carried out may be shortly described as follows: 1. Vessels built according to this plan show a decrease in the area of

be shortly described as follows: 1. Vessels built according to this plan show a decrease in the area of resistance to the water full 35 per cent. when measured against any other vessel of the same breadth of beam and draught of water, thus insuring greater speed. 2. They have a better disposition of the centre of gravity, a consequent increase in stability, and a decrease in the amount of oscillation, enabling them when required to carry a larger quantity of canvas than other vessels of the same size. 3. The engines are so constructed as to effect economy in space gines are so constructed as to effect economy in space and weight, causing also a saving of coals equal to a sixth of the consumption of other marine engines. 4. The screw-propellor possesses greater power of propulsion than any other propellor vet introduced by at least 10 per ceut. 5. Attached to the euced by at least 10 per cent. 5. Attached to the engines is a powerful steam signal whistle which is so constructed as to give out a code of signals, by which captains of vessels can communicate with each other, by sounds perfectly intelligible, at a distance of three or four miles apart. The object of this portion of the invention is to prevent collisions at sea during dark nights or foggy weather. The novelty in the steam propellor is confined to the manner of fixing the fans so that each blade when revolving will clear the other of backwater. volving will clear the other of backwater. This adaptation seems extremely simple. The introduction of a buoyant drum or bess, in which the root of the fan is fixed, also reduces the weight of the shaft by about two-thirds. The trial vessel, which will be ready for launching in a few days, is of 60 tons burden, and when fitted with her and stores will weigh only 14 tons. She is formed of plate iron one-eighth of an inch thick, with angle irons an inch and a half thick, and ribs 15 inches apart. The inventor proposes to take her to New York when finished. There can be no doubt that light iron steamers, without cargo and driven by high pressure engines, can attain very great speed in passing through the water, but it would be pre-mature to assert that the vessel now building will realize all the anticipations which the builders have formed of her powers. If she does, she will be the precursor of great reforms in steam manigation.

We have known the disease treated quite as successfully with acids, but in these cases clean pens were also used:

The public attention has been for a long time directed to the existence of a fearful unalady amongst hogs under the above name. It has prevailed for more than a year in the large distilleries of the West and South, as well as in the small pens of country farmers in the East and North; it has committed arranged in the southern and middle States. arious ravages in the southern and middle States, and early in the spring I was called on by the owner of a large distillery here to attend to his hogs, which were rapidly dying. I went at ouce to see them, and obtained for examination the blood of many of the hogs in perfect health, for the purpose of comparison with that of those in articulo mortis fin the set of driving.

These examinations, carefully made, revealed the fact of a high inflammatory condition of the system, as the subjoined analysis shows:

Healthy Hog Blood.—Clot firm, not large, scarletcolored; solids, normal; fibrin as 2.33 per 1,000.

Decared: Hog Blood.—Clot not firm but large, frown-colored; solids less than in the healthy; fibrin as 5.60 per 1,000.

The blood in each case was taken from the arte-

This condition of the blood evinced a high degree of inflammatory action, but did not show in what particular organ or organs; structure or structures, the inflammation was located. To discover this, I made numerous poet mortem examinations, and found: 1st. The brain healthy; the heart do; the found: 1st. The brain healthy; the heart do; the stomach do; bowels, including the greater or lesser intestines, do; kidneys do; liver do; melt or spleen do; lungs intensely diseased; in the upper part they were engorged with tark, grumous, bruised-looking blood, and in the lower lobes the inflammation had proceeded to sufficiation, being filled with purulent bloody matter, and entirely incapable of carrying on the process of breathing. The left lung generally more affected than the gight, and in every instance. sloody matter, and entirely incapable of carrying on the process of breathing. The left lung generally more affected than the right, and in every instance the inflammation had proceeded to a greater extent in the lower than in the upper parts of the lungs; in some cases the peculiar structure of the lung could not be seen, so entirely had it become disorganized. In no cases were well-defined abscesses found, nor was the windpipe ind uned but a short distance from the seat of the diseased lung.

Symptoms—The first symptoms were a laziness on the part of the animal affected, some loss of appetite, a kind of husky grunt approaching to a cough, sometimes a slight purging of the bowels, and a yellowish colored nrine; then the animal would become more weak and seem to be paralysed in the come more weak and seem to be paralysed in the small of the back, totter about for a short time, and finally lay down and die.

The treatment was divided into two parts, prophplactic (preventive) and curative. With a view to the first, the pens were scattered over with plaster of Paris and water-slacked line, whilst at the same time they and the troughs were washed with gas tar. The curative treatment was the administration of soda-ash and borilla. There is some trouble in the solution of borilla, and on this account soda-ash the solution of borilla, and on this account sous-ash should always be used with it. About ten grains of soda-ash and the same amount of borilla should be given to each bog two or three times daily, mixed in their food. This should be given to the healthy as well as the sick hogs. To the well it does no harm; to the sick it is a successful remedy.

As in the human species, so in hogs-inflamma-ion of the lungs is a most justified disease, going on to the destruction of the patient before the more symptoms give cause of alarm, and in many in-stances hogs which appeared healthy were yet seri-

The above remedies were used on about three thousand hogs, and in the utmost intensity of the disease. The number of their deaths diminished seventy-five per cent. on the second day after their administration, and in a short time the disease disappeared from the locality.

As soon as the hogs were manifestly sick they were put in pens by themselves and subjected to the above treatment. Of these about thirty per cent.

Causes.—It is a disease of general atmospheric origin, influenced by special, local, exciting causes, such as the sweating sickness, black-death, cholera, and other epidemics which at different times have devastated, more or less, all parts of the earth, and devastated, more or less, all parts of the earth, and of whose intrinsic nature we know very little. It is not confined to distilleries, but has also proved destructive in the country. It is not produced by atrychnine or any vegetable or mineral poison.

strychnine or any vegetable or mineral poison.

The disease attended with swollen jaws, the proper name of which is hog quinsy, prevailing in some parts of the State, has no connection with the above, and can be most successfully treated by making incisions over the swelling and then pouring in a small quantity of salt and turpentine.

I should be obliged to persons throughout the United States, who have observed this disease, to examine the blood and the different organs, and report to me the results; should any be incapable of making an analysis of the blood, I will with pleasure furnish them with the instructions how to perform it.

JAMES HIGGINS,

State Agricultural Chemist of Maryland.

It is a common practice to attribute to "atmospheric origin" all diseases the causes of which are not understood. The Doctor is not singular, therefore, in saying, "it is a disease of general atmos-pheric origin." From his position of State chemist, it may be supposed that this statement is the result of investigation instead of mere snrmise; yet he does not favor us with a single fact on which that opinion is based. We cannot, therefore, say how much reliance is to be placed upon his opinions of the cause or care of this disease.

In this connection, we add the following from the Edinburg (Ind.) Local News, which contains some hints that may be useful:

A new supply of some fifteen hundred hogs were put into the inclosure ready to supply the pens at the still-house in this place, last week, and were some attacked with what was supposed to be the disease called "hog cholera," since which time they have been dying at the rate of fifty to sixty per day. The first symptom noticeable is a slight cough, which is soon followed by a drooping, stiff appearance; the nose and lips and sometimes the jaws and ears turn blue and swell up, and finally purging and sometimes vomiting follows and death can be speedly. Hogs, in every stage of the disease have been killed and examined for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the disease, and ease have been killed and examined for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the disease, and the result establishes the fact, beyond scruple, that the disease here is inflammation of the lungs, those in the first stages showing a congested condition in a portion of the lungs, while those further advanced had a more extensive engorgement, and in the last stages of the disease the lungs were dark, dry, and solid, with some ulceration of the lungs and threat. The stomach and intestines show no series of disease.

agrae af disease.

If this be the disease bearing the name of "hog cholera," it is a misnomer, and should be no longer allowed to mislead in administering remedies. The most of the remedies administered have no doubt been injurious, and hastened the disease to a

Is not the exciting causes of the disease, in this matance at least, the too sudden change in the condition and food of the hogs? These hogs were taken from the woods or the fields and driven several days and put, great numbers together, in a small enclosure and fed with corn and slops. Would not the exposure and fatigue, followed immediately by a more stimulating feed than the hogs had been accustomed to, be likely to produce the disease we have in this case?

The hogs in the pens have had no symptoms of the Time for Transplanting Fruit Trees—As a general rule, the proper season for the removal of trees is at any period between the cessation of growth in autumn—usually a little later than mid-autumn in the Northern States—and its recommencement in spring. The earlier in spring the better; but if deferred till the buds are much swollen, the roots should be coated immediately with mud and kept moist till again set ont. Transplanting may be performed in winter, whenever the ground is open and the air above freezing; but roots which are frozen while out of the ground will perish unless they are buried before thawing.

When it becomes necessary to keep trees through winter without setting, as often occurs where they

when it becomes necessary to keep trees through winter without setting, as often occurs where they are brought from a distance, the roots may be placed sloping in a trench on a dry spot of ground and fine earth thoroughly sprinkled in among them, filling up all interstices; and if they are of tender kinds, one-half of the stems may be covered with earth. Trees are often badly kept from neglect to fill up the Trees are often badly kept from neglect to fill up the cavities, which may be prevented by dashing in water, as in transplanting. If received late in autumn, after having been frozen, the roots should be buried as speedily as possible before thawing takes place, the gradual abstraction of the frost by the soil being perfectly safe, in the same way that it takes place every spring when the frozen roots of standing trees are thawed with the thawing of the ground.

The size for transplanting must vary with circumstances. Six to seven feet high is large enough under ordinary circumstances, but those much larger may be successfully removed if they have been previously prepared by shortening the long roots to induce the emission of a mass of smaller fibres near tha centre or stem. This is done one year before, by running a spade into the earth in a circle about the foot of the stem, if the tree yet stands in the unreery, or by cutting a circular trench around the tree if ry, or by cutting a circular trench around the tree if it is a large standard in open ground.

Trees not over four or five feet high would usually succeed best with the usual hasty mode of digging, as a proper balance between the top and the root would be more nearly preserved, the danger of dying would be less-ued, and the vigor of growth being less checked, they would as soon attain a bearing usual.

ing state. On a review of the essential requisites for successful transplanting, they may be summed up briefly as follows:

1. A previous preparation of a rich deep bed of mellow earth to receive the roots and land which cannot be water-soaked.

2. Removing the tree with as little mutilation of the roots as practicable.

3. Paring off the bruised parts.

4. Shortening-in the head, in a greater or less de-

2. Shortening-in the heart, in a greater or less degree, to correspond with the necessary loss of roots.
5. Immersing the roots in mud.
6. Settling the earth with water.
7. Planting no deeper than before.
8. Staking or embanking to prevent injury by the PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9. A meeting or the stockholders of the Pennsylvania Bank was held this morning. Win C. Patterson, who had been appointed president of the bank, to succeed Allibore, was called upon to make a general statement of the bank. He said that no statement could be made which would not be falsified in least than 24 hours. You statement only be made as a statement only thousand are less than 24 hours. No statement could be made to which he would be willing to affix his signature.—

The funds of the bank had been used for improper transactions. The condition of the bank was better known by the public outside the bank than by the officers. The books also had been talsified.

Patterson declines the Presidency. All the directors except Allibone have resigned, and Allibone has left the country. It the bank should make an assignment now, no man could say that its debts could be paid. If carefully nursed, the bank may be resuscitated. This statement, meagne and unsatisfactory as it is, is the only one which can now be made. There are no data upon which to proceed. Bills areceivable have been sold by the president, funds have been abstracted in divers ways, money has been taken out and charged different accounts. has been taken out and charged different accounts, at the discretion of the late president. We need officers to trace the operations of the president during four years. Large transactions of the president, un-known to the directors, have just come to light. Resolutions were adopted for the appointment of a committee of five, at large, from the stockholders, to recommend proper directors and also to report to what extent the capital of the bank has been impaired by authorised or fraudulent acts of the late president or any aiders or abettors in such fraudu-lent acts; also, declaring Allibone's seat vacant.

John M. Dutton, of the firm of Austin, Allibone John M. Dutton, of the firm of Austin, Allibone, & Co., made a defense of the president. He said he would return to America and answer the charges. He inquired why a suit should be brought against Allibone for $200,000, if Patterson could give no figures? [The speech was hissed, and the speaker proceeded with much difficulty.] He further stated that Allibone three reals against the speaker proceeded. that Allibone, three weeks after accepting the presidency, said if he had known the condition of the bank he could not have been tempted to accept the Patterson, in reply, stated that all the directors, on oath, stated that Allibone had used $200,000 improperly. Much disorder prevailed. Cries of "Allibone can't be whitewashed; he is too well known."

The meeting then proceeded to consider the relief act, which was accepted.

Boston, Nov. 9. A hearing was had to-day on a writ of habeas corpus sued out for a slave girl, named Betty, belonging to Lewis Swett, of Tennessee. The girl expressed a wish to remain with her master. Chief Justice Shaw then dismissed the case. Considerable excitement has been produced by this case in certain circles. Several colored persons made strong but unavailing attempts to induce Betty to accept her freedom.

but unavailing attempts to induce Betty to accept her freedom.

Mr. Sweet and his family had spent several winters traveling in the North. Their last stopping place was Lawrence, Mass., where a writ of habeas corpus was obtained on the grounds that the woman Betty was restrained from liberty. The parties were brought to this city to-day. Mr. and Mrs. Sweet said they would cheerfully abide by Betty's choice. Judge Law took the woman into an adjoining room to ascertain her wishes without bias from the presence of those around her; and then granted an order to the following effect: That Betty be at the presence of those around her; and then granted an order to the following effect: That Betty be at liberty to remain in Massachusetts or return with her master to Tenuessee, as she may see fit.

It has been heretofore stated that Lieut. J. C. Ives, of the topographical engineers, had been assigned to the important duty of exploring the Colorado of the West. This gentleman, with his corps of assistant, at last accounts, had arrived at San Francisco. Connected with that subject the correspondence will be transmitted to Congress.
